Message from the CEO

Welcome to our first newsletter of 2018. The Board and team at Parking Australia have a full year ahead as we focus on events and member collaboration. In 2013 we released the five pillars that would guide PA towards our mission of achieving excellence in all aspects of Parking with raising standards being an integral part of this. The parking industry awards have certainly been a testament to excellence and achievements and I would encourage any organisation involved in parking to consider submitting an entry in the 2018 awards. I would also like to formally congratulate CARE PARK, SECURE PARKING, ACE PARKING, WILSON PARKING & PRIPARK for their commitment to the Accredited Operator Scheme and compliance with the Code of Practice for Enforcement on Private Land. We have also launched this year the Learning Lab on Tour which will feature a full day of behind the scenes site visits at some of our member operations where delegates will hear first hand parking case studies regarding various initiatives. The first Learning Lab kicks off at Perth on 27th February and with only a few spaces remaining, I would encourage you to book soon. I suggest you also take a look at the itinerary for Intertraffic (and beyond), as the PA study tour is designed for parking professionals who want to meet with peers and share and learn from overseas experiences. Our industry like many, is experiencing rapid diversification and PACE 18 on the Gold Coast will be a dynamic event for learning and demonstrations of the "changing spaces" of parking. The elephant in the planning scheme; how cities are still dominated by parking space

Car parking is expected but often unnoticed, taking up surprisingly large proportions of city space. A parking bay occupies at least 13 square metres - some codes specify up to 30 square metres including accessways.

Yet people nearly always underestimate car space.

How to create walkable parking

Planning for Walkable Parking basically means working to create more park-once-and-walk districts where much of the parking is open to the public, even if it is privately owned. It means enabling local 'parking pools' and not caring if any particular site has enough on-site parking.
