

Is the parking industry facing regulation?

On 10 September a group heading up the Airports for Australia and New Zealand (A4ANZ) released a statement calling on the federal government to further regulate Australia's major airports. Part of this call was to regulate airport parking prices which received significant press coverage, albeit as Myriam Robin from the Australia Financial Review stated, 'Tabloids reheating ancient airport price-gouging figures'. Personally, I don't believe that Australia's major airports do have a monopoly on how people get to the airport as implied by A4ANZ. Read more...
